Roundtable of BRICS Ambassadors

CUTS International organised a roundtable of BRICS Ambassadors entitled, 'Significance of Emerging Economies and the Way Forward for Cooperation' in New Delhi on February 06, 2013.

The objective of the meeting was to discuss thoughts on the way forward for the on-going cooperation among BRICS, and the impact it will have on rest of the world. These thoughts will be taken forward to Durban and beyond through CUTS' recently established initiative called BRICS Trade & Economics Research Network.

More than 20 participants representing the Government of India, ambassadors of the BRICS countries, representatives from the G-20 countries, business associations, consumer and other civil society groups, research institutions and media took part in the deliberation on how best to take forward the role of emerging economies.

Promoting Participatory Approaches for Removing Regional Trade Barriers in South Asia

A Public Private Dialogue held in New Delhi on March 19, 2013

CUTS International with support from The Asia Foundation and in partnership with the Federation of Indian Export Organisation (FIEO) organised an event entitled, 'Public-Private Dialogue on Removal/Harmonisation of Non-tariff Barriers in South Asia' in New Delhi, on March 19, 2013.

The objective of the event was to discuss and frame a plan for removing and/or harmonising NTBs affecting intra-regional trade in South Asia through a participatory approach by taking into account the views and concerns of business/trade associations and relevant government bodies.

Arvind Mehta, Joint secretary (SAARC Division), Department of Commerce, Government of India said that India should focus more sharply to advance trade relations with neighbouring countries in South Asia and specific policy proposals should emerge from think tanks in order to initiate actions that results in growth of regional trade.

COENCOSA Phase II - Final Meeting

CUTS with support from The Asia Foundation will be organising the final meeting of COENCOSA Phase-II in New Delhi on April 11, 2013.

Considering the need for institutionalising an effective system of public-private-people dialogues to address NTBs affecting regional trade in South Asia, the objective is to endorse a business plan which has been formulated to advocate for an interventionist and participatory role of the private sector, civil society and other relevant stakeholders in identification and removal/harmonisation of NTBs and to launch a network of policy champions to take forward the agenda.

Participatory Approaches to South Asian Regional Integration and Connectivity

CUTS in partnership with AUSAID will be organising a stakeholder consultation on Participatory Approaches to South Asian Regional Integration and Connectivity in New Delhi on April 12, 2013.

Realising that an inclusive and participatory approach is necessary to achieve progress on development issues in South Asia, the proposed meeting has two objectives:

- gain civil society inputs on AusAID's strategy supporting South Asian regional integration and connectivity; and
- develop a shared understanding of the big issues affecting progress towards regional economic integration and identify priority actions.
