Grassroots Reachout & Networking in India on Trade & Economics
(GRANITE) Phase II
Tuesday, April 20, 2010, 1000 – 1400 hrs
Kota, Rajasthan

Background

CUTS Centre for International Trade, Economics & Environment (CITEE), Jaipur with the support of the Royal Norwegian Embassy, New Delhi and Novib (Oxfam, The Netherlands) is implementing a three-year project titled, “Grassroots Reachout & Networking in India on Trade & Economics (GRANITE) Phase II. Among others, one of the primary objectives of this project is to foster equality and accountability in economic governance system in India and ensuring better economic literacy to generate a more coherent civil society voice on economic governance in the country vis-à-vis effect of globalization on the livelihood of the poor, particularly marginalised and women. The project broadly aims towards articulating policy coherence between WTO guidelines and national development policies to reduce poverty levels and adopt distinct methodologies and focus areas.

The GRANITE Phase II was conceptualised on the basis of important lessons learnt from the implementation of first phase, which was implemented from 2005-07. The second phase spans for the three years i.e. from 2007-10. It is implemented in eight states, viz. Andhra Pradesh, Karnataka, Maharashtra, Orissa, Rajasthan, Tamil Nadu, Uttar Pradesh and West Bengal, in partnership with civil society organizations (CSOs) working at the grassroots focussing on Agriculture, Horticulture and Textiles from India, given their significance in the generation of employment in India.

During the second phase an institutional analysis (a critique) on the process of preparation and implementation of the National Foreign Trade Policy of India, 2004-09 was done in the first year of the project i.e. from April 2007 to March 2008. While state government officials and business stakeholders were consulted for doing this analysis, civil society organisations and community-based organisations were extensively consulted in order to advocate for making the process of preparation and implementation of the National Foreign Trade Policy of India more inclusive – in economic sense as well as in social and political terms.

In the second year (2008 to 2009), project partners conducted case studies on specific products in order to understand whether and how as a result of the implementation of the National Foreign Trade Policy of India, 2004-09 affected (or, not affected) export of that specific product.

In the third year (2008 to 2009), project partners conducted similar case studies on different products with the same objective.

Context

In Rajasthan CUTS CITEE conducted a case study on Kota Doria. Primary focus of the case study was to find answer to the following questions:

- Whether as a result of NFTP, exports of specific products (Kota Doria, in case of Rajasthan) have increased?
- What has been the impact of the increase (or, no increase) in Kota Doria export on the various stakeholders in a Kota Doria economy?
- What are the channels through which the benefits of the National Foreign Trade Policy percolate down to the grassroots?

- What can be done to better integrate International Trade and Human Development at the grassroots?
